P03 Go and give your teachers some hard hands, a high five or a fist bump today. Let them know I see you. Now, let's get to your news.

P06 When we came through, it looked like a movie scene. Like, you don't expect to see something like that in real life.

P07 It's just really scary right now. We've never had to do this before. There was no hotel room at all.

P08 Officials say the fire was human-caused, though exactly how it started remains under investigation. Around 1,000 firefighters are battling the blaze, which has been fueled by gusty winds, [03] _____, and dry brush. Those challenging conditions are expected to worsen throughout the week, potentially complicating efforts to contain the fire.

P10 Powerful storms knocked down trees, power lines, and hundreds of [05] _____ August 11th. Initially, more than 300,000 customers lost electricity. As of this taping, more than 20,000 in Gary, Indiana alone were still without power.

P11 That means spoiled food, closed schools, and concerns over refrigerated medicine. Some residents have filed a proposed class action lawsuit against utility company NIPSCO, alleging inadequate tree and [06] _____ worsened the outages. NIPSCO says it strongly disagrees, calling the storm damage unprecedented and widespread.

P12 The company says [07] _____ in hard-hit Gary is expected to be substantially completed by this evening.

P13 Now overseas, where Britain's new prime ministeris making a statement with the [08] _____ of his first trip abroad. Prime Minister Andy Burnham traveled to Kiev, Ukraine Monday, meeting President Volodymyr Zelensky and other European leaders.

P14 Burnham also co-chaired a meeting of the Coalition of the Willing, countries working to strengthen Ukraine's security and defense as its war with Russia continues. The timing carried extra [09] _____. Monday was Ukraine's Independence Day, exactly 35 years since the country declared independence from the Soviet Union in 1991.

P15 Pop quiz, hot shot.

P16 Which river in Africa is recognized as the longest in the world? Congo, Nile, Zambezi, or Orange?

P17 If you said Nile, correct. If you said something else, you just might be in denial.

P18 This river boasts 4,132 miles [10] _____ and crosses 11 countries, including Egypt, Ethiopia, Sudan, and Kenya.

P19 Imagine being one of just 35 girls chosen from across an entire country, not simply to attend a school, but to challenge generations of expectations. On Senegal's historic Goree Island, an elite [11] _____ is educating some of the country's brightest young women in a nation where fewer than one in five girls finishes high school.

P20 They're learning that where you begin doesn't have to determine where you end.

P21 At 12, Ndeye Awa Diop says she was too [12] _____ to raise her hand in class.

P22 Imagine it. Imagine. I didn't even [13] _____ speak in class. I didn't look people in the eye.

P23 At 19, she's now the president of the [14] _____. This is Mariam Abba School of Excellence, an elite girls school on an island off the coast of Senegal. Here, students are encouraged to challenge traditional expectations of women and prepare to become leaders.

P24 But it's an opportunity only a small number of girls get. While the majority of girls in Senegal are [15] _____ in primary school, less than 20 percent make it through high school, according to United Nations estimates.

P25 We're in a society where there are a lot of prejudices, a lot of [16] _____ to the emancipation of women.

P26 And in fact, I think that the first rule of life that we teach these girls is that they must get rid of all of these prejudices, [17] _____, and show their leadership wherever they are.

P27 Girls can face pressure to leave school to help at home, marry, or have children. And when families can't afford to educate all their children, boys are often [18] _____.

P28 Growing up in rural Senegal, Ndeye Awa Diop experienced this first hand. That is, until she started at this boarding school. The Mariam Abba School has a 100 percent [19] _____ and tuition is fully funded by the state. They admit 35 girls a year.

P29 Through interacting with people, through listening to advice, through reading as well, through expressing myself, I learned to be a leader, if I can say so. And Diop has. Six years after enrolling, she's about to [20] _____. She hopes to become an international business lawyer.

P30 For 40 years, UConn women's basketball has been [21] _____ with one word, winning.

P31 Hall of Fame coach Geno Auriemmahas spent decades bringing together different personalities and [22] _____ and convincing them to sacrifice for something bigger than themselves. That's at the heart of the new Apple TV docuseries, The Dynasty UConn Huskies. I sat down with coach Auriemmaand Emmy award winning filmmaker Matthew Hamachek.

P32 Coach, when you were approached about this opportunity to tell the story of your career, of your teams, of your program, what was most important to you?

P33 To let everybody see how much people sacrifice to make this work. How much the players themselves gave of themselves to make the team better, gave up [23] _____ sometimes for the good of the team. How much time was spent on the court? How much time was spent off the court? That this didn't happen by accident. You don't win this much for this long without great people doing amazing things. So I want everybody to see that.

P34 Matthew, your previous series, The Dynasty New England Patriots covered a 20 year run over 10 episodes. Coach Auriemma's UConn dynasty is twice as long. It's still going. How painful was deciding what not to put in this series?

P35 Finding things that make these stories [24] _____.

P36 And if you focus on that, the decisions on what to cut and what not to leave in and things like that become a lot easier. But, you know, it really helps when you have great characters like Coach Auriemma and, you know, Diana Taurasi and Paige Bueckers and all of them to focus on. Because I think when people watch these things, they can see themselves in them.

P37 Even though those characters are going through [25] _____, the emotions and the things that they're grappling with are very ordinary and universal to all of us.

P38 How did you two work together in the filmmaking process? Who was tougher during this process? Genothe coach or Matthew the filmmaker?

P39 We both knew what we wanted. I wanted my team to win. I wanted my team to look and play like the best team in the country. And I needed to do what I needed to do to make that happen. Matt wanted this to be the best piece that it could be, the best series that it could be.

P40 And he knew what he wanted to make that happen. 90% of the time, those two things were in [26] _____. The other 10%, you know, that's just normal, par for the course stuff.

P41 But he is annoying. And once you take that for granted, you know, say, look, he's going to be annoying. He's going to be annoying. So just deal with it.

P42 Coach, we saw some of the familiar faces teased in the trailer. Sue Bird, Paige Bueckers, Azzi Fudd, Rebecca Lobo, Maya Moore, Breanna Stewart, Sarah Strong, on and on.

P43 You spent decades telling these women what you thought of them. Now you had to sit here and hear what they thought of you. How uncomfortable, how heartwarming, how [27] _____ was that for you?

P44 You know, that's a good way to put it. I think it was all those things. It was heartwarming in the sense that the kind of effect that we as coaches have had on those players that have come through here. You know, if you played and you know that that sacred place, that [28] _____ and that team bond, that's real.

P45 And that has an effect on us as coaches, them as players, and that doesn't go away. So it was great to hear that.

P46 Today's story, getting a 10 out of 10 passion, [29] _____, and enough fancy footwork to make your feet file for overtime.

P47 We're heading to Buenos Aires, where it takes two to tango, but apparently 800 couples from around the globe to find the world's best. Only 60 couples remain in the final stage of the 24th Tango World Championship in Argentina. The two-week festival [30] _____ with the finals on September 1st and 2nd.

P48 Tango teaches us something. Sometimes you step forward, sometimes you have to step back. The important thing is to keep on moving.

P49 We have a shout out today going to all of our math whizzes and Mr. Anderson at Robie Elementary in Indianapolis, Indiana. I got to meet Mr. Anderson in Indy and put him to the test with a math brainteaser, and I must say, he crushed it. Well done, sir. And rockets rise up.

P50 And we're also showing some love to Miss Nash at Newton Middle School in Centennial, Colorado. Andrew, I see you.

P51 Thank you for spending part of your day with us. Tomorrow is Wednesday. Put a unique vocabulary word and definition in the comment section of our latest posts on Instagram or TikTok, @CoyWire, @CNN10, and we're going to choose a winner to work into tomorrow's show.

P52 Put your school, name, city, and state in there, too, so we can show you some love. Remember, this world is full of fascinating stories, amazing people, and opportunities. There's something we can learn each and every single day.

P53 Go find it. I'm Coy Wire, and we are CNN10.
