听写正文 / QUESTIONS 01–30

P01 What's up, sunshine? Coy Wire here with your CNN 10 Minutes of News for July 17th, another summer Friday edition catching us up on some of the biggest storylines of the week. If you're wondering about the background, it's because this dude wore this shirt, and I just look like a floating head. So here we are.

P02 Let's start today with a little brain teaser. If you have three, you have three. If you have two, you have two.

P03 But if you have one, you have none. What is it? I'll give you a second. Give up?

P04 Answer is a choice, because if you only have one, it's not a choice.

P05 So thank you for choosing to spend part of your day with us. Now let's get to your news. We're kicking off this with the world's biggest sporting event.

P06 Earlier this week, the World Cup semifinals took place in Dallas. France's Kylian Mbappé and Ousmane Dembele looking to reach a third straight World Cup final facing Spain with 19-year-old sensation Lamine Yamal, who plays like [01] _____ is just another defender to dribble past.

P07 Then in Atlanta, it was defending champs Argentina led by 39-year-old Lionel Messi in what could be his final World Cup, taking on England, looking to lift its first World Cup [02] _____ since 1966.

P08 Now the stage is set. It'll be Spain taking on Argentina on Sunday in New Jersey. One match, 90 minutes, maybe more, and a chance to become the team their [03] _____ remembers forever.

P09 Now to a microscopic menace that's having a hugeimpact on cookouts all across the country this summer. It's a single-celled [04] _____ called Cyclospora, wreaking havoc in several states. It causes a condition called cyclosporiasis, which can include weeks of uncomfortable gastrointestinal issues.

P10 While state and federal investigators say they've yet to determine the [05] _____ behind the surge in cases, Cyclospora commonly passes to humans via raw fruits and vegetables. Our Jacqueline Howard has some tips on what to do to avoid it and what to do if you come down with a serious stomach bug.

P11 Here's what you need to know. In some cases, this illness has been tied to eating [06] _____. And the illness that we're talking about here is called Cyclosporiasis. It's caused by the parasite Cyclospora.

P12 And health officials are investigating cases across several states. In some of those states, Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania, and Texas, cases have been linked to eating fresh produce from Mexican-style restaurants, local chain [07] _____, and catered events. Some examples of produce potentially include cilantro, onions, and cucumbers.

P13 Now there are at least eight additional clusters of cases that are still under investigation in several other states as well. And Cyclosporiasis, it causes intestinal illness. So symptoms include watery diarrhea, in some cases, explosive diarrhea.

P14 And these symptoms can last for weeks. The illness can be treated with [08] _____, but it can be a very miserable illness.

P15 So you want to avoid getting sick in the first place. To do that, avoid food or water that may be [09] _____ with feces. Experts say that's how this parasite can spread. Also, make sure you thoroughly wash any fresh fruits or vegetables that you have.

P16 If you have firm fruits like melons, scrub them with a brush. And [10] _____ goes a long way. Wash your hands with soap and water, especially before preparing food. Back to you.

P17 All right. On Capitol Hill, lawmakers are rememberinga longtime public servant whose career stretched across decades.

P18 South Carolina Republican Lindsey Graham died last Saturday after suffering an aortic dissection caused by cardiovascular disease, according to the D.C. Medical Examiner. The 71-year-old served in the Senate for 23 years, was a congressman before that. He was an Air Force veteran, also ran for president in 2016.

P19 Senator Graham was also up for reelection, and the filing period for [11] _____ interested in running for the seat begins next Tuesday.

P20 Pop quiz hotshot. A group of rhinos is known as what? A thunder, a crash, a rumble, or a stomp? If you said crash, you rhino-your-stuff.

P21 And if you're wondering where the term originated, just picture a pack of these prodigious pachyderms charging through the brush. Between their massive size and [12] _____, rhino's not exactly known for their agility.

P22 On the black market, a single rhino horn can fetch tens of thousands of dollars, making the animals dangerously appealing to [13] _____.

P23 But in South Africa, one remarkable team is fighting back. They're called the Black Mambas, an all-woman group of [14] _____ protecting wildlife from poaching, not with guns, not with bullets, but with a keen eye and relentless patrols. Garbhajan Hossaini wrote along to see how they get it done.

P24 This is Greater Kruger National Park in South Africa, nearly 5 million acres of [15] _____ and home to some of the most extraordinary wildlife on the planet, including some of the last black rhinos on earth. There are just over 200 of them left in this park. Protecting them is a group unlike any other. The Black Mambas.

P25 36 strong, battle-hardened, relentless, and unapologetically entirely female. Rhino poaching across South Africa fell 16% last year according to [16] _____.

P26 But inside Kruger, it nearly doubled. Here a black or white rhino is poached [17] _____ every 50 hours. Rhinos here are targeted for one reason. Their horn.

P27 The black market is mostly driven by demand in Vietnam and China, where it's used in traditional medicine and as a [18] _____, despite the fact that it has no proven medicinal value at all.

P28 To stop this trade, the Mambas patrol nearly 40,000 acres every single day. And they do it completely unarmed. It's an [19] _____ in a world where most anti-poaching units carry weapons. It's not an oversight. It's a philosophy.

P29 Poachers are dangerous. And you all operate unarmed. That seems like a bad idea to me.

P30 Actually, it is a good idea to us because it's been 12 years doing this. None of us has been killed by poachers.

P31 And that's because we [20] _____ get trained. But also we're not threats to the poachers.

P32 So how do you prevent them if they know you don't have guns, if you can't hurt them?

P33 So they know that we're not going to hurt them, then there's no need for them to use their bullets on us as we're not going to respond.

P34 But your [21] _____ will still scare them away.

P35 Our presence scares them away because they don't want to be seen. They don't want to be [22] _____.

P36 So they just want to come inside the [23] _____, kill the rhino, get the horn and out. And that's why they're always running.

P37 Before the Black Mambas, women were largely shut out of frontline ranger roles in this [24] _____. These women didn't just change how this reserve is protected. They opened a door that didn't exist.

P38 So many people didn't believe in us, but we have proved a lot of them wrong.

P39 They learned on us in the reserve. When we do roadblock sometimes in those first years, some of them, they wouldn't even allow us to search them or to touch their car. When now they have elephants are breaking into their house, into their lodges and like things are missing. Now they call the Black Mambas.

P40 Today's story, getting a 10 out of 10, a new twist on [25] _____ where sparks are flying literally. They're calling it the heavy metal summer experience.

P41 The point is to give teens hands on experience with trades like welding, HVAC repair and [26] _____. It started as one camp in Palo Alto, California. It's now expanded to 62 locations in the US and Canada.

P42 When we got hands on with [27] _____ and saws and all kinds of different things, I was really, really excited.

P43 There's historically a [28] _____ with blue collar and construction, and we need to eliminate that.

P44 This actually provides a five year [29] _____ through Foothill.

P45 It was free and I was getting paid to work. So it was great.

P46 Organizers say one motivation looking to address a major [30] _____ across these industries.It's estimated that there will be a need for two million skilled trades workers in under five years, and they tout that an apprentice can earn a six figure salary by their seventh year.

P47 All right, Sunshine, we have two shout outs today. This first one goes to Mrs. McNeil and Mr. Turway at Northeast Regional Correction Center in Saginaw, Minnesota.Thank you so much for making us a part of your summer and keep up the great work.

P48 Next shout out. This one goes to Mrs. Allard at St. Thomas the Apostle School in West Springfield, Massachusetts.

P49 Thank you for subscribing and commenting on our CNN 10 YouTube channel. Rise up. Hope you have an awesome weekend.

P50 Keep asking great questions. Keep chasing curiosity. And remember, you are more powerful than you know.

P51 See you next Friday. I'm Coy Wire and we are CNN 10.
