听写正文 / QUESTIONS 01–30

P01 What's up, sunshine? Welcome to the show. I'm Coy Wire. This is CNN 10.

P02 Happy Friday. If your week was anything like mine, you were feeling the heat, feeling some pressure, and you put in the time to get through. But heat, pressure, and time, the same things that test our fortitude, also make diamonds.

P03 So let's rise up, shine bright, and get your 10 minutes of news.

P04 Now, we begin with potentially groundbreaking news in the fight against cancerinvolving a vaccine. An experimental mRNA vaccine has shown promising results in late-stage [01] _____ aimed at preventing the return of melanoma, the deadliest form of skin cancer.

P05 Results of the ongoing study have shown that when combined with an immunotherapy drug, the vaccine prevented the cancer from returning or spreading among high-risk patients. It uses the same basic mRNA technology that became widely known through COVID-19 vaccines. mRNA, or messenger RNA, carries [02] _____ that tell our cells how to make proteins.

P06 Now, vaccines, particularly mRNA vaccines, are a source of [03] _____ for some people, and it's important to point out this treatment is still experimental. The complete trial data have not yet been released, and regulators still have to evaluate it.

P07 They take the mRNA that codes for those mutations in the patient's actual tumor, and they give that back to the patient, and the patient makes [04] _____ to their own tumors. This is a customized, personalized vaccine to treat your own tumor.

P08 So, promising? Absolutely. Proven cure? No.

P09 But potentially an entirely new chapter in how doctors fight cancer. More than 1.5 million Americans were living with melanoma in 2023, according to the National Cancer Institute. Pharmaceutical companies Moderna and Merck, who are co-developing the treatment, say they plan to file for [05] _____ from regulators within months.

P10 This weekend, Washington, D.C. becomes Washington of horsepower.The nation's capital is set to transform into a bona fide racetrack, hosting its first ever IndyCar race, the Freedom 250 Grand Prix. The 125-lap race carries a roughly $35 million [06] _____, all paid for by IndyCar, making it among the most expensive races on their calendar.

P11 Extensive construction was needed to allow open-wheel IndyCars to race safely at speeds of up to 180 miles per hour, including walls to protect both racers and [07] _____ in viewing areas along the track.

P12 The roughly one-and-a-half-mile circuit is centered around the National Mall, and flanked by some of the capital's biggest [08] _____. It even features a Pennsylvania Avenue pit lane just blocks from the Capitol Building.

P13 The one-of-a-kind race rounds out a summer of celebrations that included a mixed martial arts fight on the White House lawn, a fair on the National Mall, and what was billed as the biggest [09] _____ in history.

P14 Pop quiz, hot shot.Which of these is an actual feature of the rhesus macaque, the monkey commonly found around Delhi, India?

P15 A second stomach, cheek pouches, [10] _____, or a prehensile tail?

P16 Answer is cheek pouches. It's like their own snack pack. Rhesus macaques can stuff food into [11] _____ pouches inside their cheeks and save it for later. The pouches can expand roughly the size of their stomach, basically a lunchbox built into their face.

P17 In the streets of Delhi, India, organizers of the Badminton World Championships have hired people with one of the strangest [12] _____ we've ever heard of. Professional monkey whisperer, our Ivan Watson, has more on how they're trying to keep monkeys away from one of badminton's biggest stages.

P18 How do you keep the monkeys that roam New Delhi's streets out of an international sports event? One [13] _____ might involve a monkey whisperer.

P19 Here's a monkey whisperer shared by Radio India at Delhi's Indira Gandhi Stadium, where Badminton's World Championships are currently being held. He's [14] _____ the call of a langur monkey to scare away smaller rhesus macaque monkeys.

P20 For years, [15] _____ here have been trying to come up with ways to keep Delhi's monkeys from infiltrating major events without hurting the animals.

P21 They put up life-sized cutouts of langurs when Delhi hosted the G20 summit in 2023. And during the Commonwealth Games in 2010, officials actually employed live langurs to scare away monkeys. But that's [16] _____ now.

P22 A monkey was spotted at Indira Gandhi Stadium at a different badminton event earlier this year. When asked what to do if it happens again this week, the head of India's main badminton [17] _____ joked, maybe he'll just give the monkey a banana.

P23 Now to Panama, where conservationists just found something that hasn't been [18] _____ in this community in nearly three decades.

P24 [19] _____ in the sand leading to a nest belonging to the biggest sea turtle on the planet. Community conservationists say they've located a leatherback sea turtle nest near Jaqué on Panama's Pacific coast for the first time in nearly 30 years. Officials say at least one leatherback turtle came ashore after conservationists discovered its tracks in the sand.

P25 From 1998 to 2026, we have significantly increased the sea turtle [20] _____ here. Previously, only one species, the loggerhead, was found here. But now, of the five species found in Panama, four have already arrived in the region.

P26 The turtle's return marks major progress for the town, where conservationists have spent close to two decades [21] _____ their time to protecting the animals.

P27 Imagine studying for one of the biggest tests of your life,passing, and then being told, yeah, we're going to need you to take that again. That's the reality for tens of thousands of [22] _____ at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, Mexico's largest university and one of Latin America's most prestigious.

P28 It annulled the results of around 3,000 tests after the results showed an unusually high number of perfect scores, suggesting some students may have cheated using AI. 58,000 applicants were called to take a new test, even if they were not accused of cheating, this time in person and under [23] _____. CNN's Valeria Leon reports.

P29 After an alleged AI fraud using in the admission exam, thousands of students are now lined up to get to this admissions test for the second time to get into the National Autonomous University in Mexico, one of the oldest and most [24] _____ universities of Latin America.

P30 This is the first time that the UNAM applied this test [25] _____ and after this fraud allegedly signaling students using AI for this first test, the university decided to reapply this test.

P31 And this is what the students feel of retaking the exam.

P32 Around 50,000 students have presented this test, the second one for the [26] _____ to the National Autonomous University, the UNAM. And here in Mexico City, this is the place, Palacio de los Deportes, where thousands of students and also their families, as you can see here, they are waiting for hours until their students can present the test and finally go out. This is the last date for the students to get inside and get this test done and finally get a place in one of the most important universities in Mexico.

P33 Today's story, getting a 10 out of 10, a mama bear who would do anything for her son, including getting some serious ink. 11 year old Hunter Fletcher has nonverbal autism and communicates using augmentative and alternative communication or AAC, a virtual tablet with words and [27] _____. But when the device's battery died, mom had to try something new.

P34 I got a piece of paper and I wrote the alphabet and he kind of got a little [28] _____. He flipped it over and started writing the keyboard and he fake typed on the keyboard to tell me what he wanted to eat.

P35 Inspired by that one afternoon at a restaurant, Fletcher decided to [29] _____ tattoo a keyboard on her arm.

P36 That sparked the idea for me that I can't limit him to technology because technology does fail us.

P37 One viral social media video later, the Fletcher family has now partnered with a [30] _____ to sell shirts with keyboards on their sleeve. A mom giving a whole new meaning to wearing your heart on your sleeve.

P38 Let's end with some Friday fun. We have a shout out going to Mr. Taylor at Lorain Preparatory High School in O-H-I-O. Thank you for commenting and subscribing on our CNN 10 YouTube channel.

P39 And this shout out goes to Liz Angley at Graded, the American school of Sao Paulo, Brazil. Thank you so much for sending us this very sweet flag and this little dude. Bom dia, brother.

P40 Play that Friday music, Nadir. Go out, have an awesome weekend. Go out, make someone smile.

P41 You never know how or when or who, but you may be the spark of joy someone needs. I'm Coy Wire. This is CNN 10.

P42 It's been a blessing to spend this week with you.
